Lindsay Naylor
“Cultivating Sustainability: Seeds and Climate Change Adaptation in Highland Chiapas”
Thursday, March 24
5:30pm-7:00pm Founders Hall 118

Lindsay Naylor is a political geographer who uses food and agriculture as a lens to examine human-environment interactions and spaces of resistance. She received her PhD from the University of Oregon and is currently Assistant Professor of Geography at the University of Delaware.